Dear Medium,

Expressing and sharing one's perspectives, opinions, and creativity is vital to being human. Medium provides a safe, open environment for people to do just that, and to peruse others' viewpoints as well. Interpreting data for Medium not only allows people to better connect with content they care about, it also fits what I'm looking for in a career:

1. To solve difficult problems alongside intelligent individuals
2. To learn new skills and techniques while honing those I have

Medium is the right place to fulfill both requirements, so I will use my strong work ethic and rapid learning ability to help your users more conveniently connect with relevant pieces. I would fit well in your growing team because:

I learn quickly, so I taught myself SQL to become a more effective employee in my current position.

I love problem solving, so I am seeking a new, challenging role where I can better utilize my expertise

I would love to talk with you about what more you want in your product scientist hire. From what I read on the posting, I think you might like talking to me as well.

Thanks for your time,
